

ABSTRACT

Systems and methods are provided for controlling the content information sent to a user. A database includes content information and user subscription information. The content information is organized by a server for each user based 5 on the user subscription information. The server is in communication with a user terminal and sends the content information to the user terminal.